P. 3 – Add third paragraph:
"Remember, before you do anything serious like upgrade your operating system, first backup your important files. The easiest thing to do is drag your entire hard disk onto a FireWire hard disk. Always create at least two backups and store them in different places—it won't do any good if all your important backups are in the same office that gets burglarized or burned down! Of course, we know we're supposed to backup but we don't do it until we have our own personal catastrophes. Be forewarned."
