52	Objective 1.3: Review, question 1, explanations C and D	C and D read: C. Correct: Responsiveness is key here, and this approach relies on client-side JavaScript and a separate server process to manage the communications. Because the chat client is running entirely in JavaScript, the server could return a page immediately without waiting for customer service. D. Incorrect: Although this approach would work, the server would not return a webpage until after customer service typed a response. Most users are not willing to wait several minutes while a page loads. Should read: C.
